

Young Performers Career Advancement 2022
Guidelines and Application Preview
Application deadline: 5:00 p.m. (EDT) on Wednesday, September 15, 2021

Young Performers Career Advancement (YPCA), part of the APAP Classical Connections initiative, is a program designed to assist selected classical musicians in the formative stages of their careers by offering opportunities to meet and work with established presenters, agents and managers. The program provides a practical overview of the presenting and touring industry, along with expert instruction in the development of audience engagement skills and the chance to perform at APAP | NYC's only self-produced showcase held at the prestigious, Carnegie Hall.

The Classical Connections initiative was formed in 1996 to provide artists, presenters, managers, and agents with forums for professional development and networking within the classical industry as well as stimulate opportunities and development for classical music within the touring and presenting field. The Classical Connections Committee (CCC) is a volunteer committee made up of presenters, managers, agents, artists, journalists, and advocates for classical music. The CCC guides and advises on multiple activities and events that impact the classical field, including the YPCA program. Most are members of APAP and regularly attend the annual conference.

Program Highlights

Due to the ongoing and unpredictable nature of COVID-19 Pandemic all events and listed timings can be subject to change

- Attend the APAP | NYC+ 2022 Annual Conference (January 14 - 17, 2020)

Participants receive full conference registration to one of the world's largest performing arts marketplaces and leadership convenings. APAP | NYC+ 2022 will be a hybrid conference offering both online and in-person sessions, providing unmatched opportunities to engage in professional development sessions, attend performance showcases, network with colleagues, and conduct business.

- Participate in Professional Development Seminar Activities

This October, participants will learn how the business of presenting works, how relationships are established among presenters, managers and agents, and how to build the networks needed to further their career interests. They will also discover where their interests connect with the larger presenting and touring industry and vice versa. The seminar faculty includes established managers, presenters, artists and career advisors representing a spectrum of viewpoints on the classical music industry. Each session will be specifically tailored to meet participants' needs – helping to set goals for long-term career development and create networking resources that last for an entire career.

- Perform in the only APAP self-produced showcase

All YPCA participants will perform for the country's most esteemed performing arts presenters, managers, record company representatives and agents at Carnegie Hall on January 15, 2022. APAP will electronically provide one professional image from each artist/ensemble's culminating performance.

- Maintain Year-long Access to National/International Performance Opportunities

APAP members range from large performing arts centers in major urban cities, outdoor festivals and rural community-focused organizations to academic institutions, artists and artist managers. Participants will have access to a wealth of knowledge, resources and experiences represented in the APAP network.

Please Note: In referring to “classical” music, the program implies Western classical music. YPCA is designed for artists who are classically trained and are performing repertoires rooted in this tradition. However, APAP does recognize recent changes in contemporary music, including the blurring of musical genres, and acknowledges and applauds artists who perform new music infused with other traditions.

Note: A personal representative could be (but is not limited to) a mentor, sponsor, organization, or presenter who will represent the artist(s) during APAP|NYC+ 2022. If an artist has questions about this distinction, please contact Kaitlyn Sakry, ksakry@APAP365.org for further clarification.
2. The artist’s representative does not need to be an APAP member at the time of submission. However, if selected to participate in the program, representatives must become an APAP member by October 11, 2021. Current members must maintain their membership through January 31, 2022.
3. If selected, YPCA artists must ensure that their representative has registered for the APAP|NYC+ 2022 annual conference (either digital or online registration) or will register by October 18, 2021.

4. Artists can be soloists, duos or any combination of artists comprising an established ensemble. The performers may be vocal or instrumental (electric or acoustic).
5. Participants must be in the first ten (10) years of their professional performing career and characterized as a classical soloist/ensemble committed to a professional career as a performer(s).
6. Artists should have experience touring, familiarity with the concert booking process in the U.S. and be fluent in English as all seminars will be conducted in English.
7. Selected participants must be available to attend the entire YPCA program, including the showcase and reception at Carnegie Hall on January 13, 2020. APAP reserves the right to replace an artist or ensemble who cannot commit to the full program.

Selection Criteria

Artistic Excellence

First and foremost, artists must be strong performers and demonstrate first-rate musical skills.

Career Track

Musicians should be able to demonstrate strong professional accomplishments in the first years of their careers to indicate a potential to succeed. They must also have a demonstrated ability to think about and plan for their careers in a broad context.

Commitment to Audience Development

Musicians must have a demonstrated commitment for audience development that includes: K-12 education or adult education (those who have a pre-existing interest in classical music or are unfamiliar with the art form).

Diversity of Program

The YPCA selection committee strives to select artists and ensembles that represent a spectrum of musical instrumentation, as it is represented in the classical music repertory.

Equal Opportunity

YPCA does not discriminate based on race, color, religion, national origin, sex, age, marital status, disability, handicap, personal appearance, sexual orientation, family responsibilities, geographic location, matriculation, political affiliation, source of income, place of business or residence, or any other factor prohibited by law.

Selection Process

Applications are reviewed by an independent panel of APAP members and representatives from the classical music field including artists, presenters and artist managers. The committee considers artistic excellence to be the primary factor in the selection process. To emphasize artistic excellence in the selection process, artists will be reviewed in three rounds:

Round One: Performance Video Review

Panel listens to the performance video submissions only. Artists are evaluated solely on artistic merit and submit scores to APAP based off performance videos alone.

Round Two: Portfolio Review

After the performance videos have been evaluated, the panel will then be granted access to the remainder of the artist's application. All panelists will review each application in full and submit another set of scores to APAP in preparation for a final review call.

Round Three: Final Review and Selection

The final review will be held with the full panel. Artists receiving the top scores in the first round will be the most highly considered.

Additional factors in the selection process include: instrumentation, balance of soloists or ensembles, and diversity of musicians for the showcase program. The panel selects four to five soloists or ensembles to participate in the YPCA program. The committee will not select more than two soloists or ensembles from any one management company or agency.

YPCA Participation Policy

The YPCA program is provided free of charge to selected participants through APAP's Classical Connections endowment. Through these funds, participants will receive:

1. Full conference registration with the expectation of full participation in the APAP | NYC+ 2022 annual conference and YPCA program, including the showcase and reception.
2. For participants residing outside New York City: housing for four nights (January 13-17, 2022) in a double occupancy room at either the New York Hilton Midtown or the Sheraton New York Times Square. For ensembles, each room will house two YPCA participants. Participants residing in New York City may receive a per diem for ground travel.
3. If requested, an honorarium of $150 for accompanists and/or page turners. The accompanist/page turner must be selected and confirmed by the YPCA participant and have their contact information submitted to APAP by November 12, 2021.

Participants are expected to:

1. Each applicant and each member of the ensemble (as applicable) will be required to provide proof of full COVID-19 vaccination prior to their travel and participation in the APAP|NYC+ 2022 annual conference. More guidelines will be discussed in the program.
2. With support of their management or personal representative, provide their own round-trip transportation, ground transportation, meals and miscellaneous expenses.
3. Obtain their own rehearsal space--although, participants should not expect any guaranteed time for rehearsal during the in-person portion of the YPCA program and should prepare accordingly before arriving in NYC.
